Ruling size matching the style of handwriting taught in German schools

Take your FABER-CASTELL junior fountain pen and copy the letters from the template.

It is really important that you bring the fountain pen into the correct writing position. For that you need three fingers: your thumb and index finger grip the pen and guide it, while your middle finger supports the underneath. Your forearm and your hand should rest on the table. This will ensure smooth and even lines.

The tree still wants a great many coloured leaves.

Cut and tear out little shreds of coloured paper or any other paper which is left over, then stick these shreds all over the tree. As the wind is strongly blowing through the branches, some of the leaves have fallen onto the ground.

For this exercise you need coloured paper, a glue stick and a pair of scissors.
